

What have you been up to?

Arden Rothstein, Ph.D., FABP & Dan Jacobs, MD, FABP, and Karyne Messina, EdD, FABP share their news

American Board of Psychoanalysis

Fellows in the NEWS

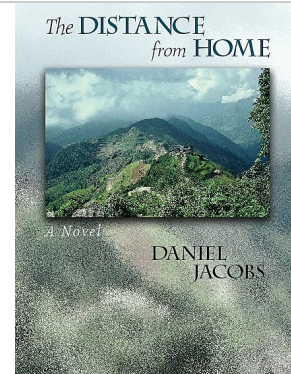

Arden Rothstein, PhD, FABP

Arden Rothstein's webinar video, Towards Transparency and Integrity in Analytic Training, based on her paper "Fostering the Educational Value of Candidate Evaluation" (International Journal of Psychoanalysis, 2017, 98: pp.1641-1668) is available at www.aape-online.org. Dr. Rothstein presents one institute's complex process of developing and implementing frameworks for assessing a candidate's progress. In assessing progression within the framework of well-defined standards candidates have been able to collaborate more actively in their psychoanalytic education. Dr. Rothstein draws from her eight years' experience as Chair of Student Progression at PANY formerly IPE (Institute for Psychoanalytic Education affiliated with NYU School of Medicine).

Dan Jacobs, MD, FABP

from home available from your local bookstore, from the publisher <https://ipbooks.net/product/the-distance-from-home-by-daniel-jacobs/> or through Amazon. For more information go to DanielJacobswrites.com.

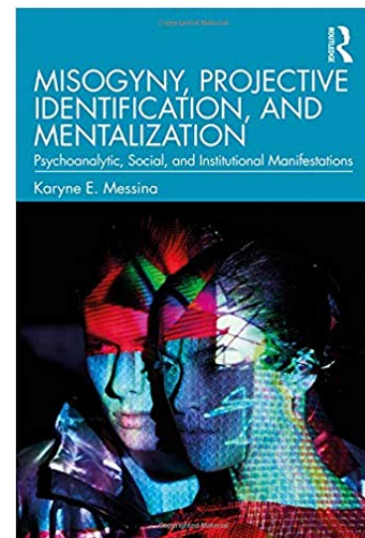

Karyne Messina, EdD, FABP

Publication Announcement

Misogyny, Projective Identification, and Mentalization by Dr. Karyne E. Messina, Psychologist & Psychoanalyst, will be released by Routledge, April 2019 (ISBN 978-0367192211).

Misogyny, Projective Identification, and Mentalization tells the story of women who have been erased, dismissed, and devalued, while putting forth a hypothesis about why the phenomenon occurs and what can be done to change this dynamic. Messina proposes that projective identification—the mechanism that allows a person or group to get rid of negative feelings, thoughts, or fantasies by attributing them to someone else—can (particularly in political and cultural settings) create a hivemind and lead to dismissal, humiliation, violence, and atrocity against women. With specific reference on the erasure of women's contributions in society, including the recent election loss by Hillary Clinton in 2016, and the trauma that arises from the many effects of regarding women as a group as 'less' or 'other,' Misogyny, Projective Identification, and Mentalization sets a new agenda for understanding how misogyny is expressed socially. Those interested in scheduling lectures may contact Dr. Messina's publicity team, Mindbuck Media (Alyssa@mindbuckmedia.com).

Like 0

Tweet

Share this Page:

powered by

Board of Psychoanalysis

News | Facebook