New Book

Cordelia Schmidt-Hellerau's Book DRIVEN TO SURVIVE was selected as a finalist of the ABAPsa Book Prize. Her book makes a compelling case for the recognition of our mind's constant strivings for our own and our objects' survival as well as for a new understanding of aggression in the service of our preservative and sexual drive activities. Numerous clinical examples show the relevance of these conceptual shifts. As Daniel Jacobs, MD, notes: "Cordelia Schmidt-Hellerau has given us a work of deep scholarship and original thought. Fully engrossing and forceful in presentation, it is a bold and necessary reworking of Freudian drive theory. Her new formulations will reshape our thinking and our way of listening." — Also she is the chair of the IPA in Culture Committee. In 2019 she has published her first novel in German, ROUSSEAU'S TRAUM.
